Stewart Taylor to leave ANZ New Zealand

The Chief Financial Officer of ANZ Bank New Zealand (ANZ NZ), Stewart Taylor, is leaving the company.

Mr Taylor is to be the Chief Financial Officer of New Zealand insurance company Partners Life.

ANZ NZ Chief Executive Antonia Watson said today that Mr Taylor had played a significant role in helping grow the bank in recent years, and would be missed.

“Stewart loves a challenge and this change will enable him to use his great leadership and organisational skills even more,” Ms Watson said.

“We’re grateful to have had Stewart in key finance and funds management roles these past 15 years at ANZ NZ where he has brought a strong strategic focus on revenues, costs, and people management and engagement.”

ANZ NZ will now go through a process to appoint a new CFO.
